Dear Sir:

In reply to your inquiry of February 9, 1953 relating to enforcement of "speed limits" on driveways on grounds of the Industrial School you are correct in your assumption that the signs set up by the Superintendent have no legal effect.

In the absence of a statute setting specific speed limits for operation of vehicles upon driveways of state owned institutions and premises travel upon which is open to the general public and providing for like penalties for violation as are prescribed for violation of motor vehicle offenses occurring on public highways it appears that only legislative enactment of suitable statute will solve your dilemma.

Very truly yours,

George F. Nelson
Assistant Attorney General
